Dear Parent or Guardian,

I am a professor in the Department of Psychology at Florida State University and the principal investigator of a Multidisciplinary Learning Disabilities Center funded by the National Institutes of Child Health and Human Development. We are creating a registry of families who are interested in participating in research studies of reading. If you join the registry, you may be notified of future studies on occasion and be asked to participate in them. You are under no obligation to participate in any studies to maintain your membership in the registry. You also may withdraw from the registry at any time by contacting me. If you do not withdraw, your information will remain in the registry for an indefinite period of time. Any information you provide will be kept confidential to the full extent allowed by Florida law. We will not provide your information to any organization or company for commercial purposes. The possible benefits for joining the registry include the opportunity to contribute to learning more about reading through participation in studies and the opportunity to receive information that we believe might be helpful for individuals with reading difficulties.

If you have any questions concerning this registry or your possible participation in it, please call 866-290-2456 or write to me at rkwagner@psy.fsu.edu or at the address above. Please indicate below if you would like your family to be included in the registry.

Thank you,

Richard K. Wagner
Alfred Binet Professor of Psychology
